Katty Kay

BBC America Correspondent

speaking on

“Washington from a Different Angle”

Thursday March 11, 7:30 p.m.

Millennium Hotel, 150 West Fifth Street, Downtown Cincinnati

Katty Kay has the voice, the attitude, and the inside scoop on what is really going on in Washington. As the BBC Washington Correspondent for World News America, Kay has become a sought-after political analyst, appearing on Meet the Press, Larry King Live, the Chris Matthews Show, and Morning Joe on MSNBC. She is a regular guest host on the Diane Rehm Show on NPR.

A witty and sharp observer of American politics in action, Katty Kay does not shy away from telling it as she sees it. Her reports on U.S. news are aired nightly on BBC America and the BBC World News.

Her talk, “Washington from a Different Angle,” will present her unique perspective on American politics through the lens of a seasoned journalist with international credentials.

Katty Kay gives audiences an unparalleled sense of the global reaction to American policy. Her charm and wit are the perfect complement to the keen insights she provides on the President, Congress, the State Department, and the Pentagon.

She grew up all over the Middle East where her father was posted as a British diplomat. Before moving to the United States, she reported for the BBC from Zimbabwe, London, and Tokyo.

Katty co-authored with Claire Shipman the new book, Womonomics: Write Your Own Rules for Success, which shows the significant value of women's management style in today's workplace.

Woman's City Club hopes you will join us for a fascinating and informative evening.
