COSPONSORED PROGRAM: FORUM WITH CITY COUNCIL CANDI- DATES

CINCINNATI CITY COUNCIL CANDIDATES TO PRESENT VIEWS OF ISSUES FACING THE CINCINNATI AREA

Tuesday, September 30, 5:30-7:30
Heart of Northside, 4222 Hamilton Avenue

Due to the number of candidates, the forum will take on a “speed dating” format. The candidates will address small groups of participants at a time, answering questions provided in advance that reflect issues of concern to voters. The candidates, who will all receive the same questions, will share their beliefs and positions on the issues.

Depending on time considerations, participants may be able to ask the candidates “live” questions.

The League of Women Voters, Woman’s City Club, NCNW, and MARCC are cosponsoring this forum.

A NEW SEASON!

I hope you all had a wonderful summer, and I welcome you all to a new program year. Although kids have gone back to school, summer doesn't officially end until the autumnal equinox. What better way to celebrate the last day of summer than with a potluck in the park at the French Park Pavilion in Amberley? See old friends and make some new ones! Our potlucks are famous for their irresistible array of dishes, so don't miss this one.

Good government and civic engagement continue to be a major focus of our work. On September 4, I testified before Council, applauding their repeal of the rezoning that enabled a development on Hyde Park Square much larger than what the base zoning allows. It is a relief that the neighborhood will not have to campaign for a ballot issue to repeal it, but negotiations continue between the neighborhood and PLK, the developer, who will file a new application.

Our forum on October 21 will focus on how Community Councils can or ought to influence outcomes in planning and development that are compatible with our neighborhoods. With another election approaching in November, we are pleased to join with the League of Women Voters in presenting a City Council Candidate forum in the form of speed dating on Tuesday, September 30. A program on green space and community gardens cosponsored with the Sierra Club on October 6 will show some of the ways our community is being made more connected to nature.

Our forum on October 21 will focus on how Community Councils can or ought to influence outcomes in planning and development that are compatible with our neighborhoods.

With a new program year, we have a re-energized board, with two board members—Deborah Alsop and Laurie Frank—who have stepped up for a second term, and two past board members—Susan Noonan and David Siders—who have returned after going off for a while. This is a testament to how devoted they are to WCC's mission. We are also excited to welcome a new board member—Sarah Muncy—who is jumping right in to chair our Communications Committee. She has already demonstrated her talent for social media and managing meetings.

Of course, the organization is more than our board, it's also our 180 members. You are critical part of the club, which strives to educate, empower and engage citizens in activism for a better community. We welcome your ideas about issues to work on and your participation in all our events and committees such as programs, civic engagement, education, environment, and membership. Maybe you'd like a short-term assignment helping with our Feist Tea, National Speaker Forum or Education Awards? You can find contacts on the last page of the Bulletin. And don't forget to come to our Potluck in the Park!

WCC TOUR OF THE CINCINNATI RECYCLING & REUSE HUB

In connection with Earth Day, WCC is offering an exclusive evening tour of the Cincinnati Recycling & Reuse Hub (or the Hub) on Wednesday, April 30, at 6:00 pm.

The Hub's mission is to revolutionize how people think about "things" and to provide a place where almost anything can be recycled or reused. Staff and volunteers at the Hub work diligently to reduce the amount of waste going to landfills. They fill the gaps between what curbside recycling services and other nonprofits accept and what is actually recyclable. For example, they accept Styrofoam, soft plastics, batteries, wine corks and garden pots.

Stephanie Cornett
New Executive Director

Additionally, the Hub is a central point for many reusable items including computer electronics, televisions, plastic toys, office supplies, fabric, eyewear, wrapped plastic utensils, and much more you would be surprised to learn about. Some items are available in their reuse shop, where the policy is take what you need and pay what you can. The Hub even has an online training video on how best to use the Hub.

Since it was founded four years ago by Colleen McSwiggin and Carrie Harms, the Hub has successfully diverted more than 1 million pounds from the landfill! See a great article on the backstory of the Hub in the current Movers & Makers--<https://moversmakers.org/2025/03/25/cincinnati-recycling-reuse-hub-talks-trash/>

Join us on April 30 to expand your perceptions of sustainability to better help Cincinnati's environment. The tour is limited to 20 people. Reserve your spot today by calling 513-751-0100; leave a message if no one answers.

Please do not bring items for recycling. The Hub's address is 911 Evans Street, in Lower Price Hill. You can enter a gated parking lot behind the building from Woodrow Street.

Everyone on the tour is welcome to continue the evening at the Incline Public House nearby on Price Hill to further the conversation and enjoy good food and a great view of our city. They have a great American menu, with some healthy items, including gluten-free pizza crust!

SEASONGOOD LUNCHEON AND MARIAN SPENCER EDUCATION AWARDS!

WCC Annual Event

THE 30th ANNUAL SEASONGOOD LUNCHEON & MARIAN A. SPENCER EDUCATION AWARDS

SATURDAY, MAY 3 ~ 11:30 AM – 1 PM

Kennedy Heights Arts Center Annex
6546 Montgomery Road, Cincinnati

The Woman's City Club invites its membership and the community to its Saturday, May 3, Seasingood Luncheon, an event held each spring in honor of Agnes B. Seasingood (1890-1982), a WCC leader, benefactor, and community activist. It is also when WCC presents education awards to promising young women.

This is a lovely occasion as we gather together for a festive lunch buffet, hear a local woman leader speak, and learn about the award winners, who will be at the luncheon.

Our 2025 speaker will be the Administrative Judge of Hamilton County Common Pleas Court, The Honorable Wende Cross. Judge Cross has had a varied and distinguished career, as a lawyer in Kentucky, as an Assistant United States Attorney for 10 years, serving in both the Eastern District of Kentucky and the Southern District of Ohio at Cincinnati, and as the principal of a small law firm focusing on civil rights litigation, family law, and criminal defense. Judge Cross then was appointed Magistrate of the Hamilton County Juvenile Court, where she served children and families of Hamilton County.

Judge Cross was elected to the bench in November 2020 by an overwhelming majority vote in Hamilton County. Her lifelong dream of becoming a judge is rooted in her values of justice, fairness, and rehabilitation. She believes that “we cannot simply continue to do business in the court system as usual. The lives of victims, defendants, families, and communities are at stake.” Her experience, compassion, and uncanny sense of fairness are what Hamilton County enjoys today.

She is a member of a host of organizations, serves on several boards, and volunteers with various organizations that serve at-risk youth and families.

WCC presents education awards to civic-minded senior high-school women to further their educational goals. The awards are named the Marian A. Spencer Education Awards in honor of the civil rights activist and past president of WCC, who died in 2019. This year we are thrilled that we can increase individual awards from $1000 to $1500.

WCC will be selecting five young women based on their submitted essays on “Growing into Citizenship: Speaking Up and Making a Difference” and their school recommendations.

Come early (with your checkbooks) to bid on a selection of gift baskets in a silent raffle. Club members donate the baskets, and winners of the baskets are announced at the end of the luncheon. Any profits from the lunch and basket sales benefit the Education Awards Fund.

Anyone interested in donating a basket may contact Laurie Frank at lkfrank81@gmail.com; Carole Donnelly at carole.donnelly@uc.edu; or susannoonan1943@gmail.com

APRIL SELECTION
SHOW DON'T TELL
By Curtis Sittenfeld

Saturday, April 19
10 am via Zoom

We are going back to book club's early days and reading a book by a woman, and who better than the latest book by our Cincinnati-raised Curtis Sittenfeld. In her second story collection, Sittenfeld shows why she is as beloved for her short fiction as she is for her novels. In these stories, she conjures up characters so real that they seem like old friends, laying bare the moments when their long held beliefs are overturned.

In "The Patron Saints of Middle Age," a woman visits two friends she hasn't seen since her divorce. In "A for Alone," a married artist embarks on a creative project intended to disprove the so-called Mike Pence Rule, which suggests that women and men can't spend time alone together without lust-ing after each other. And in "Lost but Not Forgotten," Sittenfeld gives readers of her novel Prep a window into the world of her character Lee Fiora, decades later, when Lee attends an alumni reunion at her boarding school. We'll all be looking forward to reading that! And there are nine other stories!

Considered hilarious, thought-provoking, and full of tenderness for her characters, Sittenfeld's stories peel back layer after layer of our inner lives, keeping us riveted to the page with her distinctive voice.

Join the discussion and give your take on these stories. Do they live up to the hype?

About the author, Curtis Sittenfeld: Her New York Times best-selling books have been translated into 30 languages and twice selected as Reese's Book Club books. They include the novels Prep, American Wife, Eligible, Rodham, and Romantic Comedy, and the first story book collection, You Think It, I'll Say It. Sittenfeld's stories have appeared in The New Yorker, The Atlantic, and The Best American Short Stories, of which she was the 2020 guest editor.

Sittenfeld is a graduate of Stanford University and the Iowa's Writers' Workshop. She lives with her family in Minneapolis. More bio at: curtissittenfeld.com

Members and their friends, or others by invitation, are welcome to join the conversation, but you must RSVP to obtain the link: sarah.gideonse@fuse.net.

SCHOOL FUNDING CPS LEVY FORUM

August Public Forum

KNOW BEFORE YOU VOTE – UNDERSTANDING THE 2025 CPS RENEWAL LEVY & HOW SCHOOLS ARE FUNDED IN OHIO

The August 28 forum at the Clifton Cultural Arts Center was presented at a time of change in how Ohio funds its public schools and with homeowners angry about increases in property taxes. In this environment the Cincinnati Public Schools has put a 10-year renewal levy on the November ballot for Preschool Promise and operating expenses for the K-12 schools.

The forum's excellent panel included CPS superintendent Shauna Murphy, CEO of Preschool Promise Chara Fisher Jackson, Emily Chesnut, a Milford school board member and representative of Honesty for Ohio Education, and a local state representative, Republican Lou Blessing, who has recently shown an independent streak in regard to this year's budget provisions affecting public schools. The WVXU education reporter, Zack Carreon, served as moderator, posing questions to the panel.

SCHOOL FUNDING

Representative Blessing reported on the state budget bill passed July 1 and its provisions for public schools. In 2021 a bipartisan group of legislators passed a school funding formula to address the state constitution's requirement for funding schools, based on the actual cost of equitably educating children in each school district and doing so with high quality programs. The formula began implementation in 2021 and was scheduled to be fully funded this biennial starting July 1. Instead, the budget funded public schools at the formula's original 2021 level. The budget also added a funding stream rewarding a school district based on its performance rather than its need.

Blessing added that Ohio is 37th in the country on per capita funding of public schools and 48th in teacher salaries. He asserted that the state did not even fund CPS fairly under the formula and pointed out that vouchers and charters were taking students and money from public schools. Low-hanging fruit for funding preschools: increase family income eligibility for preschool from 200% of poverty to 250%.

The budget included items making it harder for local governments and school districts to put property tax levies on the ballot, most of which the Governor vetoed. The legislature has threatened to override the vetoes but hasn't yet. Blessing said many of the legislators want to abolish property taxes altogether, an act which he said would be catastrophic for the community and public schools.

Superintendent Murphy commented that the most challenging part of her job was not knowing if CPS will receive funding and for how much. Also, in part because its Covid money was depleted and uncertainties about state and federal funding, CPS was forced to make tough decisions to close as much as a $50 million budget gap and balance the budget.

Chara Fisher Jackson said that community preschools and those in CPS have many funding sources but no state funding: Mainly HeadStart, a state program that reimburses tuition for children of low income working parents, and the Preschool Promise levy that provides locally funded scholarships for children from lower income families. The levy allows her to provide children with a high quality preschool experience, helping community providers gain high quality status by state standards, and to become eligible to enroll state and levy funded children. It all seems to pay off, with more children in CPS and Preschool Promise preschools passing the kindergarten readiness test. Other accomplishments and data can be found in the Preschool Promise annual report.

REASONS FOR PASSING THE CPS RENEWAL LEVY

Ms. Murphy: 35,000 reasons (students)! She asserted that it's our responsibility to ensure Cincinnati has excellent schools, as they are essential to a flourishing community, and necessary to attract families and businesses to the city. She described the restructuring of the CPS schools into districts, offering outstanding programs on both sides geographically and reducing the reliance on buses and their cost. CPS has established separate middle schools that they expect to improve the kids' academic performance and behavior in a smaller setting. CPS is also expanding its workforce options to include fire fighters and police work.

Research demonstrates the value of high quality preschool education for their social-emotional development and kindergarten readiness, learning to read, and high school graduation. If the levy doesn't pass, its added value for preschool children will go away, and many, many low-income children will lose scholarships for a high-quality preschool experience.

This program was organized by the League of Women Voters Cincinnati Area. Presenting partners were the Cincinnati NAACP, Cincinnati Association, Honesty for Ohio Education, School Board School, Urban Appalachian Community Coalition, Woman's City Club, and Applied Information Resources.

CINCINNATI'S COMMUNITY COUNCILS: A CRUCIAL LINK OR AN OBSTACLE TO DEVELOPMENT?

Tuesday, October 21, 2025

5:30 pm to 7:30 pm

First Unitarian Church, 536 Linton Street, Avondale

The City of Cincinnati website states that, "Community councils are a crucial link between the City and its many unique neighborhoods, and each council is as unique as the neighborhood it serves. These organizations ensure that neighborhood development responds to the needs and goals of its citizens." But do they?

This will be the topic of a public forum on October 21, beginning with a reception from 5:30 to 6 pm, followed by a panel discussion from 6 to 7 pm and Q & A from 7 to 7:30 pm. Presented by Woman's City Club, this free event is cosponsored by Invest in Neighborhoods.

The recent experience of the Hyde Park Neighborhood Council and Save Hyde Park Square (SHPS) was to have hundreds of speakers ignored by the City Planning Commission and City Council when they passed a Planned Development (PD) in April providing a work-around to the zoning code to allow a larger development than permitted by base zoning. SHPS responded by obtaining 18,000 signatures on a petition to reverse City Council's PD approval.

Council repealed its passage of the PD on September 4. This is welcome news, but questions remain about why a neighborhood had to go to such lengths to be heard? More than a dozen other community councils actively joined in the SHPS petition drive because they too have concerns about being heard by City Hall.

Are community councils still a "crucial link" in city governance? Are they representative of their neighborhoods? Are they respected and heard? Is there a better way for neighborhoods to communicate with the City? Should Community Councils be done away with because they're an obstacle to development or should they have a determinative role in the planning and development process? These are some of the questions that will be discussed by our panel (confirmed as of 9/4/25).

- Dave Mann, former Mayor and Council Member
- Amber Kassem, President, East Price Hill Improvement Association
- Jacqueline Edmerson, President, Bond Hill Community Council
- Sue Wilke, Co-chair, Civic Engagement Action Team
- Billy Weber, Assistant City Manager (invited)

Cheri Rekow, WCC's VP for Civic Engagement, will serve as moderator. Tell us you're coming at wcc@womanscityclub.org so we can save you a seat.

BEYOND PLASTICS

Launched in 2019, Beyond Plastics pairs the wisdom and experience of environmental policy experts with the energy and creativity of grassroots advocates to build a vibrant and effective movement to end plastic pollution. Beyond Plastics encourages a multi-level approach to reducing single-use plastic waste. Their recommendations go beyond individual consumer changes to include community and political action.

Sustainable Stores Program: Beyond Plastics will provide resources and toolkits for supporting businesses in adopting more sustainable, low-plastic practices. While they do not run a formal “sustainable stores program,” they offer guides and materials that empower individuals and local groups to encourage change in their community stores and restaurants.

What you can do to reduce single-use plastic waste in your lives and in your community:

In your daily life:

- Think green before you shop. Bring your own reusable bag for carrying your purchases, and try to buy items with minimal packaging. Aluminum and glass are infinitely recyclable, unlike most plastics.
- Refuse single-use plastics: Make it a habit to say no to plastic bags, straws, utensils, and containers.
- Use a water bottle or thermos instead of disposable bottles or cartons.

- Buy in bulk: Purchase items like grains, nuts, and cleaners from bulk bins to reduce packaging waste. Many stores allow customers to use their own containers.
- Cook more meals at home: This significantly reduces reliance on plastic-heavy takeout containers and doggy bags.

In your community:

- Support restaurants and grocery stores that reduce plastic: Patronize retail stores that have made the switch to sustainable packaging.
- Organize a “supermarket packaging take back.” This type of event sends a clear message to retailers that consumers want less plastic packaging and more bulk and refillable options.
- Advocate against artificial turf: Beyond Plastics highlights that artificial turf is a major source of microplastic and PFAS pollution.
- Put pressure on manufacturers: Contact companies that use excessive plastic packaging to let them know you prefer more sustainable options. Support competitors who use less plastic.
- Stay informed: Educate yourself and others about the problems of plastic pollution.
- Beyond Plastics offers webinars and documentaries to help spread the word.
- Join the Environmental Action Group (EAG) of Woman's City Club.

WCC CELEBRATES OUR NEWEST MEMBERS

On March 5th, nearly 30 Woman's City Club members gathered for a lively New Member Welcome & Celebration program held at the Regency's Hermitage Room. With its warm and inviting atmosphere, the space afforded the perfect venue for inspiring new connections and conversations as the club welcomed our newest members.

President Beth Sullebarger reflected on WCC's rich history of activism and service, emphasizing the organization's sustained commitment to improving Greater Cincinnati through advocacy, civic engagement, and action groups. She encouraged new members to explore opportunities to get involved and discover ways to bring our mission to life.

Nina E. Lewis, VP Membership, facilitated the opening dialogue on the topic Why did you join? Importantly, the most frequent reason for joining is the desire to connect with others who are dedicated to civic action.

As WCC leaders described WCC's 11 programs, committees, and action groups, members engaged in lively discussions—exchanging ideas and exploring exciting opportunities for future involvement.

As the evening wrapped up, members expressed appreciation to Barb Myers for coordinating access to the venue and recognized Donna Tukul for her efforts in finalizing the program.

JENNIFER HAFNER SPIESER

Member Profile

WCC member Jennifer Hafner Spieser has proven one can leave and successfully return to an employer. Now president and CEO of the Cincinnati Parks Foundation, her first job after earning a BA at the University of Cincinnati with a focus on public relations, was as a development associate at the foundation.

After three years there, she went on to a successful eight years with the Cincinnati Fire Department where, as its first female spokesperson, she raised over $35 million; this supported the hiring of 130 new firefighters and ended fire company “brownouts.” While there, she also helped develop the Cincinnati Fire Foundation.

Jennifer returned to the Cincinnati Parks Foundation as executive director, and in December 2023 she became its first ever president and CEO. At the time, incoming board president Brian Tiffany said, “Jennifer is a natural collaborator and has created new partnerships to help connect neighborhoods to their local parks. An unofficial ambassador to all of Cincinnati’s parks, her work has established programs and improvements that make parks increasingly more accessible and more welcoming to all.”

Three months ago, she was a recipient of the Pillar Award, presented by Medical Mutual and Smart Business, that celebrates individuals and organizations making a transformative impact on their communities — and she was named Nonprofit Executive Director of the Year. Her introduction said she was being recognized for her visionary leadership, dedication to community wellness, and unwavering commitment to ensuring Cincinnati Parks remain accessible, inclusive, and thriving spaces for all. Under her leadership, the Cincinnati Parks Foundation has flourished. Thanks to her strategic vision, the Foundation has successfully raised critical funds to create new features in Cincinnati Parks, conserve natural resources, and support programs that connect the community to these cherished green spaces.

At the time Jennifer said, “I’m incredibly honored to receive this award and to be recognized among such dedicated leaders. This award is a testament to the power of collaboration and the impact we can make when we invest in our community.

At Cincinnati Parks Foundation, we believe that thriving parks create thriving communities, and I’m grateful to work alongside so many passionate individuals who share that vision.”

In 2018, she led creation of the Cincinnati Parks Foundation’s Neighborhood Parks Campaign that focuses on the improvement and programming of 52 neighborhood parks.

Her service to community organizations has included the Cincinnati Recreation Foundation, Cincinnati Children’s Theater, Cincinnati Ballet Academy, Cincinnati Fire Foundation, Women’s Fund of Greater Cincinnati, Give Back Cincinnati, Class 45 for Leadership Cincinnati, Hamilton County Developmental Disabilities Services, and Make-A-Wish Foundation. She is a member of the Duke Energy advisory council.

Jennifer, a Cincinnati native and Oak Hills High School graduate, lives in North Bend with her husband Eric and their daughter Rachael. She says she joined WCC five years ago because of “the phenomenal members doing important things.” And she’s one of them.
